

13th IRO Conference Announcement

Representatives of IRO:

The 13th IRO Conference will be held in China on May 26th, 2024.

The IRO Conference is an important platform for international raspberry industry professionals to exchange information.

The China Raspberry Committee is a member of the International Raspberry Organization, and we are pleased to host the 13th IRO Conference. As the organizer and leader of the Chinese raspberry industry, the China Raspberry Committee is responsible for providing comprehensive services to producers in terms of technology, varieties, and sales. We believe that China will become an important country in raspberry production and consumption, with strong productivity and a well-established international and domestic sales system.

We sincerely invite you to come to China to participate in the 13th IRO Conference, where we can jointly discuss the improvement of raspberry technology, high-quality development of the industry, international trade of raspberries, and contribute to the future development of the raspberry industry.
